

Merry Christmas

Issue 3

December 25, 2000

"Behold, a king shall reign in righteousness, and princes shall rule in judgment. And a man shall be as an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land."

Isaiah 32:1,2

Hi everyone! Merriest Christmas to you all from both of us. Writing this letter is a good way to remind myself there is something other than madness, traffic and shopping involved with this holiday. Praise God!

So another year has slipped past us and it is time for another update from the Davids. It's been a year full of blessings for Andrew and me (no, we are not pregnant). We were able to buy our first home this year as you had probably guessed by the picture and we are enjoying it immensely. Andrew and I are learning the fine art of do-it-yourself home improvement and it has been quite the entertaining process. With the help of friends and family we've installed Pergo floors in part of the house. This is definitely an art and not a science. I can still smell Pergo glue in my sleep and my Dad now uses "Pergo" as a swear word. It did turn out well though, and we can't say we didn't learn from it. Lots of other big and little projects have filled the last few months as we've been initiated into home ownership. There is nothing quite like your first gutter cleaning experience, but it has all been well worth it.

Andrew continues to work on his Master's degree and is scheduled to graduate in the spring. I am so proud of him and we are both very excited to see the long hours of study coming to end in the near future. Andrew is still working at Medtronic Physio-Control as a Business Systems Analyst and continues to find it a fun and challenging job.

I have also continued with my job at Pediatric Associates and have even been promoted to Lead RN at the Bellevue office. What were they thinking you may ask? I'm not sure but all I can do is count my blessings. I enjoy my job and think I've found my niche in the wide world of nursing.

So there is a whirlwind update on Y2K for the David family. God bless you all this year and do keep in touch (I know, we'll try too). Our email address is ambrew@mail.com for any of you who don't already know. Talk to you next year and hopefully sooner.

With Love in Christ,

Andrew and Amber David
